

Open access week

INCREASING THE IMPACT & VISIBILITY OF YOUR RESEARCH

Thursday, October 18 | 2-3:30 p.m. or Monday, October 22 | 9:30-11 a.m.
Watson Library Conference Room 455

Our impact and value as scholars is being measured and assessed by administrators, tenure and promotion committees, and funding agencies at ever-increasing levels. As the demand that we publish and demonstrate value grows, our time to manage a dizzying array of tools like Academia.edu and ResearchGate seems ever-diminishing. Along with these developments, Open Access has become a common and normative fact of academic publishing in 2018. In this presentation Josh Bolick from the KU Libraries' Shulenburg Office of Scholarly Communication & Copyright will provide an overview of shifts in the publishing landscape, tools that support greater visibility and impact, and present a consumable plan for increasing your digital research presence.

For more information contact Josh Bolick, Scholarly Communication Librarian, at jbolick@ku.edu

Open access week

WHAT ARE OPEN TEXTBOOKS, AND HOW DO THEY SUPPORT TEACHING AND LEARNING?

Friday, October 19 | 9:30–11 a.m. or Tuesday, October 23 | 9:30–11 a.m.
Watson Library Conference Room 455

Open Educational Resources (OER) will save KU students over a million dollars in the next two years. KU Libraries has been partnered with the Open Textbook Network (OTN) to support this evolution in teaching materials since 2015. In this workshop, OTN presenter and KU Libraries' Scholarly Communication Librarian Josh Bolick will introduce OER and open textbooks as an affordable and pedagogically viable option for instructors interested in increasing learning by ensuring that ALL students have immediate access to required course materials. All interested KU students, faculty, and staff are welcome to attend. A limited number of stipends are available to KU teaching faculty who attend the workshop and write a review of an open textbook in the Open Textbook Library.

Register for Friday's session at
rockcha.ik/OAworkshop

Register for Tuesday's session at rockcha.ik/OAworkshop2

For more information contact Josh Bolick, Scholarly Communication Librarian, at jbolick@ku.edu